Item 8.01

Other Events.

On November 13, 2009, the Company entered into a third forbearance agreement extending its working capital loan facility to February 15, 2010. As part of the extension agreement, the Company has determined that it will refinance the current line of credit with another third-party financing company. The Company will need a larger working capital facility to accommodate anticipated increases in inventory and accounts receivable from its recent launch of Artisanal Premium Cheeses into supermarket chains, specialty stores and mass merchandisers. The Company has already begun the process of submitting proposals to financing companies and intends to meet the February deadline.

This weekend marks the first of fifteen road show and market place shows that the Company will undertake by December 23, 2009 with mass merchandiser, Costco. Each show ranges from three to six consecutive days of selling in various Costco locations. Next week, the Company will start stocking supermarket stores owned by the chains D'Agostino and Shop-Rite and the following week stores owned by the chain King Kullen.
