AIR FRANCE AND KLM ROYAL DUTCH AIRLINES TO CREATE EUROPE'S LEADING AIRLINE GROUP

PARIS, France and AMSTELVEEN, The Netherlands September 30, 2003 Air France (EURONEXT: AIRF.PA) and KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (EURONEXT: KLM; NYSE: KLM).

Air France and KLM today announce that they expect to conclude an agreement that would lead to the creation of Europe's leading airline group through a share exchange offer by Air France for KLM common shares. The new group will be called Air France-KLM and will capitalize on two well-known brands, strong hubs and complementary networks. This major strategic step is unprecedented in the European airline industry and is expected to create substantial value for shareholders. The Boards of both companies believe that this proposed combination is in the best interest of customers, shareholders and employees of both groups and represents a significant opportunity for further growth.

Jean-Cyril Spinetta, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Air France, said: We have always been convinced of the necessity of consolidation in the airline industry. Today, we announce a combination with KLM that will create the first European airline group, which is a milestone in our industry. This will bring significant benefits to customers, shareholders and employees. Capitalizing on the two brands and on the complementary strengths of both companies, we should, within SkyTeam, be able to capture enhanced growth opportunities.

Leo van Wijk, President and Chief Executive Officer of KLM, said: KLM has been pointing out the need for consolidation in light of the challenges facing our industry, and we have not made it a secret we were looking for a strong European partner. Through this innovative partnership with Air France and our subsequent expected participation in the SkyTeam alliance, we are confident that we have secured a sustainable future for our company. Our valuable Schiphol hub will be an integral part of the dual hub strategy of the new airline group, allowing us to build on what KLM and its staff have achieved over nearly 85 years.

The Supervisory Board and Board of Managing Directors of KLM have unanimously recommended the transaction.

The Air France Board has authorized the Chairman and CEO of Air France, Jean-Cyril Spinetta, to sign the agreement enabling the implementation of the combination between the two airline companies.

Air France and KLM expect to sign the transaction agreement within the next few weeks.

Main Financial Terms of the Proposed Exchange Offer

Exchange offer	11 Air France shares and 10 Air France warrants for 10 KLM common shares <sup>1</sup>
Warrants	3 Air France warrants give the right to subscribe or to acquire 2 Air France <sup>2</sup> shares at an exercise price of EUR 20; maturity of 3.5 years after the closing of the transaction, exercisable after 18 months
Indicative value of the offer	EUR 16.74 per KLM common share <sup>3</sup>

The envisaged transaction values the common share capital of KLM at approximately EUR 784 million (including the theoretical value of the warrants) and the exchange offer represents a premium of 40 per cent over the closing share prices of KLM at September 29, 2003 and 77 per cent based on the average closing share prices of Air France and KLM shares over the last three months.

Assuming 100 per cent acceptance of the offer and before exercise of the warrants:

- Current KLM common shareholders would own 19 per cent of the enlarged group.
- The shareholding of the French State in Air France would mechanically be diluted from 54 per cent to 44 per cent.
- The other Air France shareholders would own 37 per cent of the enlarged group.

Air France will make an offer to all KLM common shareholders, including those in the US. Shares and warrants of Air France are expected to be listed on Euronext Paris (primary listing), Euronext Amsterdam and on the New York Stock Exchange (in the form of American Depository Shares).

One Group Two Airlines Three Core Businesses

Combined, Air France and KLM have EUR 19.2 billion in aggregate annual revenues, serve 226 destinations worldwide, operate a fleet of some 540 aircraft and employ approximately 106,000 people (in the fiscal year 2002/03).

In creating one group, while maintaining two operating companies and building on the strengths of their respective brands, hubs and networks, the group will continue to focus on three core businesses: Passengers (77 per cent of aggregate revenues), Cargo (14 per cent) and Maintenance (4 per cent<sup>4</sup>).<sup>5</sup>

The proposed transaction will strengthen the SkyTeam alliance, which will become the second largest alliance worldwide. In most areas, the group will also continue to benefit from ongoing cooperation with the respective partners of both airlines. Furthermore, in the medium term, the combined group could be reinforced by the potential integration of Alitalia.

Synergies

Air France and KLM have identified and evaluated a number of areas for potential synergies. These are expected to gradually increase and have a positive impact on the consolidated operating income of at least of EUR 385-495 million as of the fifth year on an annual basis. Synergy benefits should be realized through network optimization, improved deployment of assets (both for the passenger and cargo businesses), better offerings in maintenance and cost savings in the fields of procurement, sales and distribution, maintenance and information technology. Customers can expect to benefit from these synergies through an extended route network with increased flight frequencies, attractive pricing and seamless service throughout the network.

The KLM restructuring plan announced in April 2003 will not be impacted by the implementation of the above-mentioned synergy plan and KLM management remains committed to delivering the EUR 650 million improvements in operating income by April 1, 2005.

Structure of the New Group

Following the proposed combination of Air France and KLM and as soon as legally possible, it is the intention that all Air France assets will be contributed to a newly created operating company (Air France). The currently listed Air France Company, renamed Air France-KLM, will then hold two operating companies: Air France and KLM.

The combination is structured to ensure and protect KLM's international traffic rights going forward. Notably, 51 per cent of voting interest in KLM will be held by two Dutch Foundations and the Dutch State during a transitional period of three years. The current option agreement with the Dutch State will remain in place, subject to certain amendments.

Governance

The Chairman and CEO of Air France will be Chairman and CEO of Air France-KLM. The CEO of KLM will be Vice Chairman of the Air France-KLM Board.

A Strategic Management Committee at Air France-KLM's level will be responsible for the overall group strategy.

Stakeholders Assurances

To protect specific interests of KLM and its stakeholders (including, amongst others, securing traffic rights, fair long-term hub development of Amsterdam Airport Schiphol and preservation of the KLM brand and KLM's Dutch identity), Air France will agree to give certain assurances to KLM and the Dutch State, whilst preserving the interests of the new group and its shareholders. Under Dutch law, a separate KLM assurances foundation will be established, whose Board will have certain powers of oversight concerning these assurances.

APPENDICES

Appendix 1 Strategic Rationale of the Transaction

The airline industry is fragmented and its current competitive structure, with national carriers for each individual country, is an inheritance from a former era. This has contributed to low profitability and lack of value creation for shareholders. The need for structural changes and consolidation in Europe is widely accepted, but has not yet commenced as a consequence of regulatory and political constraints.

The single European market and its current enlargement to some 455 million inhabitants reinforce the need for consolidation.

The evolution of the European regulatory framework highlighted by (i) the November 2002 European Court of Justice ruling and (ii) the mandate given in June 2003 to the European Commission to negotiate the open sky agreement with the US now creates an attractive environment for a value creating combination.

If commercial alliances have contributed over the past years to initiate the first steps towards consolidation, deeper cooperation is now needed to generate significant and sustainable synergies.

The proposed transaction between Air France and KLM is the first significant move in this context and will create a leading airline group in Europe with aggregated revenues of EUR 19.2 billion (2002/03 fiscal year).

The combination with KLM is a major step in Air France's strategy. In parallel, KLM's strategy over the years has consistently been built on two pillars: the strengthening of its own organization, as well as the participation in a global alliance, for which it seeks a strong European partner. The combination with Air France is the achievement of this strategy.

The transaction will benefit from the complementarities of the two airlines operations:

Two reputable and strong brands that will be further strengthened

Two operational hubs (Paris CDG and Amsterdam Schiphol) which are among the most efficient in Europe and provide significant development potential

Two complementary networks both in medium and long haul

- In medium haul Air France has a strong position in Southern Europe and KLM has developed a strong position in Northern and North Eastern Europe, and both will be able to expand their positions in Central and Eastern Europe
- The long haul networks currently consist of 101 destinations of which only 31 are common (essentially the world's largest cities with high traffic volumes)

A combined network of 226 destinations with 93 new destinations for KLM passengers and 48 new destinations for Air France passengers

A strong presence in cargo where Air France and KLM are the 4th and 11th largest in the world respectively but with complementary capabilities and expertise

A strong combination in the field of aircraft maintenance, creating one of the largest MRO providers world-wide and

SkyTeam will eventually become the second largest global airline alliance and with its partners being able to offer passengers a more truly world-wide network

Synergies

Potential synergies arising from the proposed transaction have been thoroughly assessed and quantified by a joint working group of Air France and KLM who has reviewed the feasibility and quantum of the synergies and their build-up over time.

Sales and Distribution

By coordinating the two sales organizations the new group will have an improved presence around the world and will be able to offer a wider range of products to passengers. Cost savings could be achieved by coordinating the sales structures of the two companies. A joint negotiation position with catering and ground-handling partners could also lead to additional benefits.

Network / Revenue Management and Fleet

By full code sharing, harmonizing the flight schedules and optimizing common management revenue policy the two airlines will be able to offer more destinations, a larger number and more convenient connections for passengers and to improve sales performance.

Cargo

The offering of an improved product through a more extensive network in combination with coordinated freighter planning, should lead to an increase of revenues. Cost savings should also be possible by more efficient hub handling.

Engineering & Maintenance

The two airlines will be able to integrate purchasing of stock, to create centres of excellence in engineering and optimize the use of existing E&M platforms.

IT

Converging the IT applications used by both airlines should generate considerable cost savings in the medium term.

Other

Optimizing and harmonizing other activities such as simulator utilization and joint purchasing of goods should deliver further cost savings.

The identified potential synergies are expected to result in an annual improvement of the combined operating income (Earnings Before Interest and Tax) of between EUR 385 million and EUR 495 million, following a gradual implementation over a period of five years, with further upward potential thereafter.

Approximately 60 per cent of potential synergies are expected to be derived from cost savings.

This does not include additional expected synergies from marketing cooperation with respective partners. Furthermore, any improvement from the common fleet policy and lower capex requirements have not yet been determined and have not been taken into account in these estimates.

KLM restructuring plan

The KLM restructuring plan, which was announced in April 2003, with targeted annual operating income improvement of EUR 650 million by April 1, 2005, are additional to the synergies mentioned above. The KLM management remains fully committed to achieving this objective.

- 11 newly issued Air France shares; for the KLM New York Registry Shares, the Air France shares will be in the form of Air France American Depositary shares ( ADSs ),
- plus 10 Air France warrants.

As part of the transaction, Air France will make an offer to all KLM common shareholders, including those in the US. Shares and warrants of Air France are expected to be listed on Euronext Paris (primary listing), Euronext Amsterdam and on the New York Stock Exchange (in the form of American Depositary Receipts Shares).

Based on the average closing share prices of Air France and KLM, the offer for common KLM shares represents a premium of<sup>6</sup>:

- 58.2 per cent over the last month

- 84.0 per cent over the last six months

Assuming 100 per cent acceptance of the offer and following an issue of 51.5 million shares by Air France (before exercise of the warrants):

the maturity of the warrant will be 3.5 years post closing of the transaction

The total cost of the Cumulative Preference C Shares for Air France will be in the range of EUR 14 million.

The Dutch State which currently owns 8.8 millions Cumulative Preference Shares A in KLM (representing 14.7% of total voting rights outstanding), will decrease its stake in a similar proportion to the French State in Air France-KLM over time. Appendix 3 A value-creating transaction

The significant expected synergies to be realized after combining Air France and KLM will unlock significant value for the shareholders of both companies:

For Air France shareholders, the transaction is expected to :

- create value through the gradual build-up of the synergies
- enhance the earnings growth profile of both operating income and net income (before goodwill and exceptional items)
- be earnings per share accretive as of the first year, based on I/B/E/S estimates.
- improve Air France's market status through increased liquidity, US listing and reduced French State overhang

For KLM shareholders, the offer represents an immediate premium over KLM's current share price (40 per cent) and enables them to benefit from the Air France-KLM earnings improvement due to synergies and the improved competitive positioning through:

- Participating via their 19 per cent stake in Air France
- Holding and, in time, executing their valuable Air France warrants
