Item 8.01. Other Events

State Street Corporation included the following regulatory update in the preliminary prospectus it filed this morning with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in connection with its proposed offering of depositary shares representing interests in non-cumulative perpetual preferred stock.

On November 12, 2014, the U.K. Financial Conduct Authority and the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission announced settlements with five financial institutions arising out of alleged manipulation of foreign exchange rates, particularly with respect to published benchmarks. These governmental authorities based their enforcement actions upon a broad range of conduct in the inter-bank market, including communications made in chat rooms. Also, the U.S. Office of the Comptroller of the Currency has entered into settlement agreements with three financial institutions, citing among other things inadequate controls regarding their foreign exchange trading businesses. Other governmental authorities in the United States and abroad are also investigating foreign exchange trading in the inter-bank market.

As previously reported, prior to the announcement of these settlements, we had commenced, but have not completed, an internal review of communications by our traders in the inter-bank market. This review includes a review of communications of our foreign exchange traders in multi-dealer chat rooms. We have been advising certain U.S. and non-U.S. governmental authorities of the results of such review and are enhancing our control environment with respect to our foreign exchange business. Given the broad scope of the announced settlements, we may become subject to governmental review or proceedings or the assertion of claims, any of which, if adversely resolved, could have a material adverse effect on our business, reputation and results of operations.
