Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure.

On March 25, 2013, the Company received draft Cohort Default Rates from the federal Department of Education ( ED ) for students of the Company s institutions who entered repayment during the federal fiscal year ending September 30, 2010 (the 2010 Cohort ), measured over three federal fiscal years of borrower repayment. (This is a new measurement period. Previously, defaults were calculated over a two-year repayment period.) The weighted average of the Company s institutions was 19.0%, a 9.2 percentage point decrease from the 28.2% weighted average for the three-year measurement of the 2009 Cohort. For the 2010 Cohort, none of our institutions exceeded the 30% default threshold.

The Company s institutions also continue to be measured under the prior two-year measurement period through the cohort of students who entered repayment during the federal fiscal year ending September 30, 2011 (the 2011 Cohort ). However, since none of the Company s institutions exceeded the applicable 25% default threshold for the 2010 Cohort or the 2011 Cohort (the draft results of which the Company received in February 2013), the Company will no longer report on these two-year repayment results.

If any of our institutions, depending on its size, were to lose eligibility to participate in federal student financial aid programs because of high student loan default rates, it could have a material adverse effect on our business.

Preliminary 2010 Cohort Default Rates by OPEID (under the three-year measurement method):

The following table sets forth the draft Cohort Default Rates for our institutions as of March 25, 2013 for the 2010 Cohort:
