Item 11 of the Schedule TO is hereby further amended and supplemented to include the information set forth in the Offer to Purchase under The Tender Offer Section 14. Legal Proceedings which information, as amended below, is incorporated herein by reference. The Offer to Purchase is amended and supplemented by adding the following subsection after the last paragraph under the heading titled The Tender Offer Section 14. Legal Proceedings :

Curley Action

On March 14, 2016, a putative class action lawsuit on behalf of a putative class of public Company stockholders, captioned Curley v. Javelin Mortgage Investment Corp., et al., Case No. 24C16001659, was filed in the Circuit Court for Baltimore City, Maryland (the Curley Action) against the Company, the Individual Defendants, ARMOUR, Acquisition and ACM. The complaint generally alleges that the Individual Defendants breached fiduciary duties of care, loyalty, disclosure, good faith and fair dealing, claiming, among other things, that the Individual Defendants failed to take adequate measures to ensure that the interests of the Company's stockholders are properly protected; failed to obtain a fair price for the Company's stockholders; and failed to conduct a fair process and acquiesced to ARMOUR's interests. The complaint also alleges that ARMOUR, Acquisition and ACM aided and abetted the Individual Defendants' alleged breaches of fiduciary duty. Among other things, the complaint seeks an order declaring that the Curley Action is properly maintainable as a class action; declaring that the Merger Agreement was entered into in breach of the fiduciary duties of the defendants and is therefore unlawful and unenforceable; rescinding, to the extent already implemented, the Merger Agreement, and or setting the Merger Agreement aside, or awarding rescissory and compensatory damages to the plaintiff and the putative class of public Company stockholders, including pre-judgment and post-judgment interest; directing the defendants to account to the plaintiff and the putative class of public Company stockholders for all damages allegedly suffered by them as a result of defendants' alleged wrongful conduct; awarding the plaintiff the costs and disbursements, including reasonable attorneys' and experts' fees; and granting such other and further equitable relief as the Court may deem to be just and proper. ARMOUR, Acquisition and the other defendants believe the Curley Action lacks merit and intend to vigorously defend the action.

Rado Action

On March 15, 2016, a putative class action lawsuit on behalf of a putative class of public Company stockholders, captioned Rado, et al. v. Javelin Mortgage Investment Corp., et al., Case No. 24C16001684, was filed in the Circuit Court for Baltimore City, Maryland (the Rado Action) against the Company, the Individual Defendants, ARMOUR and Acquisition. The complaint generally alleges that the Individual Defendants breached fiduciary duties of loyalty, good faith and independence, claiming, among other things, that the Individual Defendants failed to undertake an appropriate evaluation of the Company's value as a merger/acquisition candidate and failed to actively evaluate the Transaction in an attempt to obtain the highest value reasonably available for the Company's public stockholders. The complaint also alleges that ARMOUR and Acquisition aided and abetted the Individual Defendants' alleged breaches of fiduciary duty. Among other things, the complaint seeks an order declaring that the Rado Action is properly maintainable as a class action and designating the plaintiffs as class representatives; preliminarily and permanently enjoining the Transactions, unless and until the Company adopts and implements a procedure or process to obtain the highest possible price for its stockholders; rescinding, to the extent already implemented, the Merger Agreement or any of the terms thereof, or granting the plaintiffs and the putative class of public Company stockholders damages; directing the defendants to account to the plaintiffs and the putative class of public Company stockholders for all damages allegedly suffered by them as a result of defendants' alleged wrongful conduct; awarding the plaintiffs the costs and disbursements, including reasonable attorneys' and experts' fees; and granting such other and further equitable relief as the Court may deem to be just and proper. ARMOUR, Acquisition and the other defendants believe the Rado Action lacks merit and intend to vigorously defend the action.

Heid Action

On March 16, 2016, a putative class action lawsuit on behalf of a putative class of public Company stockholders, captioned Heid v. Javelin Mortgage Investment Corp., et al., Case No. 24C16001706, was filed in the Circuit Court for Baltimore City, Maryland (the "Heid Action") against the Company, the Individual Defendants, ARMOUR, Acquisition and ACM. The complaint generally alleges that the Individual Defendants breached the fiduciary duties of good faith, fair dealing, loyalty, due care and full and candid disclosure, claiming, among other things, that the Individual Defendants failed to take steps to obtain the highest value available for the Company; failed to apprise themselves of the true value of the Company; failed to take steps necessary to comply with fiduciary duties, such as avoiding conflicts; and participated in self-dealing with respect to the Transactions. The complaint also alleges that the ARMOUR and ACM aided and abetted the Individual Defendants' alleged breaches of fiduciary duty. Among other things, the complaint seeks an order declaring that the Heid Action is a class action and designating the plaintiff as class representative and its counsel as class counsel; enjoining the defendants and all those acting in concert with them from taking any steps to consummate the Transactions; directing the defendants, jointly and severally, to account to the plaintiff and the putative class of public Company stockholders for all damages allegedly suffered and to be suffered by them as a result of defendants' alleged wrongful conduct if the Transactions are completed; in the event the Transactions are completed, rescinding the Transactions or ordering rescissory damages; awarding compensatory damages arising from the Transactions recoverable from the defendants, jointly and severally, in an amount to be determined, together with pre-judgment and post-judgment interest; awarding the plaintiff the costs and disbursements of the Heid Action, including a reasonable allowance for the fees and expenses of the plaintiff's attorneys and experts' fees; and granting such other and further equitable relief as may be just and proper. ARMOUR, Acquisition and the other defendants believe the Heid Action lacks merit and intend to vigorously defend the action.

Item 13. Information Required by Schedule 13E-3.

Schedule 13E-3, Item 15. Additional Information.

(c) The information set forth in the Offer to Purchase under "The Tender Offer" Section 14. Legal Proceedings which information, as further amended above under Item 11 "Additional Information," to Schedule TO, is incorporated herein by reference.
