Mr. William Rutherford
Chairman of the Board
Mr. Tim Timmins
Chief Executive Officer
Metro One Telecommunications, Inc.

Dear Chairman Rutherford, Mr. Timmins and Other Board Members,

Edgar Filing: METRO ONE TELECOMMUNICATIONS INC - Form SC 13D/A

On May 12 I had the opportunity to meet for the second time with Mr. Timmins and discuss Metro One. As you may know, Columbia Ventures Corporation has been a shareholder of Metro One for more than a year and is now its largest shareholder. During the meeting I neither asked for, nor did Mr. Timmins volunteer, any non-public information.

While our meeting was friendly, I expressed to Mr. Timmins my shock and disappointment concerning the large loss that was reported for the first quarter of this year. Although I cannot presume to speak for all shareholders, as your largest shareholder I told Tim that such losses were simply unacceptable. If this had been the first quarter of problems it might be possible to be more forgiving, but this is the eighth consecutive quarter reporting losses for this company. Two years ago the stock price was about $5 per share. Today it has traded at an all-time low of less than 90 cents per share. Revenue for the first quarter 2003 was nearly $60 Million. In first quarter 2005 this was down to just over $18 Million. Cash reserves two years ago were over $90 Million. Now they are half that. Moreover, in the last two years the company has reported losses of more than $116 Million. Included in these losses has been about $70 Million of cash that has been spent on advertising Infone, without any substantial results to show for it at this point. These are sad and stunning results.

Let me assure you that we believe the services that Metro One provides are industry-leading and exciting in their own right. We also believe that Metro One is providing the highest quality services to its customers and can continue to do so. We now have serious concerns, however, about whether Shareholder interests are being adequately considered. The company is apparently bleeding more than $100,000 of cash per day and this must stop!

We recognize that great efforts have been expended on Infone, including strategies involving a retail, direct-to-consumers offering as well as wholesale co-marketing. Infone is a marvelous service with truly amazing abilities. While we understand that additional contracts could be announced soon, we also know that this is not an absolute certainty. In this environment it seems to us that much more must be done, and done immediately, to preserve the company's ability to sustain itself within its current customer base, while continuing to search out new business. These need not be mutually exclusive activities.

There are two possibilities it seems to us: (1) The company's cost structure can be "rightsized" quickly to significantly reduce the current cash hemorrhage thereby providing a longer time frame within which to continue searching for new business, or (2) It is simply not possible to properly restructure the company to conserve cash given the level of business and obligations it has assumed. Using only the public information you have made available we cannot now determine which alternative is true, although in our experience we tend to believe Metro One should be able to create a business plan to reduce cash outflows within the currently available revenues of the business. This would involve some tough decisions in the short term. Should large new Infone business materialize it would be delightful to again be in a hiring mode at that time.

If the company's costs cannot be appropriately restructured so as to create a viable current business then we should address other alternatives. Foremost among them might be to acquire or merge with another similar business so that together the resulting business would be viable.

As your largest shareholder, and as a supporter of the business, we do not understand the absence of a visible urgency on the cost control or business combination alternatives. While management has continued to collect their salaries and bonuses, shareholders have suffered devastating losses and cash burn seems to have accelerated. This is not a recipe for success.

We want Metro One to succeed and we want to be part of the solution as a supportive shareholder. Platitudes and hope, however, are not sufficient in this situation. Given the serious nature of the situation we propose the following:

1. Mr. Timmins should be assigned the continuing task of developing the Infone co-marketing customer base, but all advertising expenditures should be eliminated now. Tim believes in the service, has an immense knowledge of its capabilities and can be a passionate and effective evangelist it seems to us.
2. An outside firm with restructuring expertise should be brought in immediately to quickly ascertain whether the business can indeed be restructured to live within its current means or not. The firm would report directly to the Board prior to the Annual Meeting. As part of our support for the company Columbia Ventures would be prepared to work with the Board, at no cost to the company, to help identify an appropriate firm.

3. The Board should either commence to buy back shares of the company, assuming it thinks that the current price is attractive, and thus support shareholders such as ourselves who are willing to remain invested in the company at present; or it should declare a dividend so as to return some value to long-suffering shareholders. We are afraid that a high cash balance inside the company may be contributing to a false sense of complacency.

In today's climate of heightened sensitivity to things like fiduciary duties and enhancing shareholder value, we know that the Board will want to do the right thing in this difficult situation. For our part, we will remain fiercely interested in improving shareholder value for all shareholders. We will welcome the opportunity to speak with other shareholders, the true owners of this company, about any other alternatives. We will continue to consider all of our options, including increasing or decreasing our ownership in the company, depending on the outcome of our efforts to enhance value. We will be filing an amended 13D statement which will include this letter.

Because of the severe cash burn, we respectfully request that you reply to our proposal at your earliest convenience and in no event later than May 23 so that action can be taken quickly. Thank you for your consideration of these matters. We look forward to working together toward a better, stronger and more valuable Metro One for all concerned.

With best wishes,

/s/ Kenneth D. Peterson, Jr.
