QUANTA STATEMENT ON AQUILA LAWSUIT

HOUSTON - MARCH 21, 2002 - Quanta Services, Inc. (NYSE:PWR), a leading provider of specialized contracting services to the electric power, gas, telecommunications and cable television industries, today issued the following statement in response to Aquila, Inc.'s (NYSE:ILA) lawsuit seeking to prevent Quanta from implementing its Stock Employee Compensation Trust (SECT).

John R. Colson, chief executive officer of Quanta, said, "Aquila's focus on its own needs has once again caused it to fail to recognize the legitimate business reasons for the actions we have taken. We are confident that the Delaware Court will uphold the validity of the SECT. We believe that Aquila's lawsuit is merely the latest maneuver in its desperate attempt to consolidate Quanta's earnings with its own to achieve a desirable accounting treatment for itself, while offering nothing to Quanta's other stockholders."

Noting that numerous prominent companies have adopted similar flexible trust arrangements, Colson concluded, "We strongly believe in the SECTs long-term benefits. The SECT provides Quanta with a pre-determined means to pay for employee benefit obligations with stock rather than cash, thereby increasing stock ownership among employees, conserving corporate cash, and improving credit ratios over time. It is disappointing that Aquila has chosen to mischaracterize the terms of the SECT and we urge all stockholders to review our recent SEC filings."

Quanta Services, Inc. is a leading provider of specialized contracting services, delivering end-to-end network solutions for electric power, gas, telecommunications and cable television industries. The company's comprehensive services include designing, installing, repairing and maintaining network infrastructure nationwide.
