SALLIE MAE ISSUES STATEMENT ON LIQUIDITY FACILITIES

RESTON, Va., April 18, 2007 - SLM Corporation (NYSE:SLM), commonly known as Sallie Mae, re-affirmed today that it has obtained commitments on customary commercial terms from Bank of America and JPMorgan Chase to provide liquidity through asset-backed commercial paper conduit facilities in the combined amount of $30 billion during the period prior to the closing of the acquisition of Sallie Mae that was announced on April 16.

“We believe this amount, combined with existing liquidity, should be sufficient to meet the company’s entire cash needs beyond an expected closing date and through the end of the year, even if no additional securities are issued during that time,” said J. Lance Franke, senior vice president, Corporate Finance, Sallie Mae. “With these facilities in place, Sallie Mae should have no need to access the capital markets during this time; however, we do expect to resume issuance of our traditional asset-backed securities within the next couple of months.

“Upon closing, the banks will have committed significant amounts of lending and loan purchase facilities to assure our liquidity needs will be met for quite some time, regardless of market conditions,” said Franke. “We and our prospective investors are highly confident in our financing plans.”
