On October 30, 2006, Purchaser filed its definitive consent statement.

On November 1, 2006, the Company filed a definitive consent revocation statement on Schedule 14A opposing the Consent Solicitation.

Also on November 1, 2006, the Company sent a letter and a packet of information regarding the Company and its prospects to Purchaser and that the Company stated it had supplied to all other parties who have expressed interest in the Company.

On November 2, 2006, Purchaser sent a letter to the Company thanking it for the information package and stating its desire to review any nonpublic information about the Company which the Company believes could allow Purchaser to find additional value. Purchaser also noted that it would like access to the information that other potential interested parties had been given access to. Purchaser informed the Company that it would be willing to enter into a confidentiality agreement in order to access data regarding the Company, as long as the terms of such agreement would not have the effect of causing Purchaser to terminate the Offer or limiting Purchaser s ability to make necessary disclosures to stockholders in connection with the Offer. In the letter, Purchaser also reiterated its intention to not further extend the Offer past the Expiration Date of November 17, 2006, but indicated that it could complete the review of any necessary information within the span of a few days.
