ITEM 2. Acquisition or Disposition of Assets.

On January 31, 2003, Genetronics Biomedical Corporation (the Company) completed the sale of substantially all of the properties and assets that are primarily used in its BTX Division to Harvard Bioscience, Inc., a Delaware corporation (HBI), for a purchase price of $3.7 million in cash of which $3.5 million was paid at the closing and the remaining $200,000 was deposited in escrow pursuant to an escrow agreement expiring in April 2004. The Company will also receive a royalty on net sales of BTX products above certain sales targets for a period of four years. The assets sold included all equipment and other tangible personal property, inventory, identified contracts, accounts receivable, intellectual property and general intangibles, licenses and authorizations and records and lists primarily used in the BTX Division. HBI also obtained rights to certain intellectual property through a license executed concurrently with the sale. HBI assumed certain of the accounts payable of the BTX Division, certain obligations under the assumed customer contracts, substantially all of the product warranty liabilities of the BTX Division and other specifically identified liabilities. The purchase price was determined by arms-length negotiations between the Company and HBI. On December 23, 2002, Seidman & Co., Inc., an independent financial advisor, delivered its oral opinion to the Company's Board of Directors and December 24, 2002, reaffirmed its opinion in writing, that, as of that date and based on and subject to the matters described in its written letter opinion, the consideration anticipated to be received by the Company as a result of the sale of substantially all of the properties and assets that are primarily used in the BTX Division was fair from a financial point of view to the holders of the Company's common stock.

Item 7. Financial Statements and Exhibits.
